

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

FELTON LOVE, JR.,

No. 2:22-cv-1233 TLN AC P

Plaintiff,

v.

RICK M. HILL, et al.,

FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Defendants.

Plaintiff, a state prisoner proceeding through counsel, seeks relief pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 and state law. By order filed October 12, 2022, the undersigned screened the complaint and found that it did not state a claim for relief. ECF No. 12. Plaintiff was given an opportunity to file an amended complaint and has now filed a first amended complaint. ECF No. 15.

I. Statutory Screening of Prisoner Complaints

The court is required to screen complaints brought by prisoners seeking relief against “a governmental entity or officer or employee of a governmental entity.” 28 U.S.C. § 1915A(a). The court must dismiss a complaint or portion thereof if the prisoner has raised claims that are “frivolous, malicious, or fail[] to state a claim upon which relief may be granted,” or that “seek[] monetary relief from a defendant who is immune from such relief.” 28 U.S.C. § 1915A(b).

A claim “is [legally] frivolous where it lacks an arguable basis either in law or in fact.” Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 325 (1989); Franklin v. Murphy, 745 F.2d 1221, 1227-28 (9th

1 Cir. 1984). “[A] judge may dismiss . . . claims which are ‘based on indisputably meritless legal 2 theories’ or whose ‘factual contentions are clearly baseless.’” Jackson v. Arizona, 885 F.2d 639, 3 640 (9th Cir. 1989) (quoting Neitzke, 490 U.S. at 327), superseded by statute on other grounds as 4 stated in Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1130 (9th Cir. 2000). The critical inquiry is whether a 5 constitutional claim, however inartfully pleaded, has an arguable legal and factual basis.
 6 Franklin, 745 F.2d at 1227-28 (citations omitted).

7 “Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(a)(2) requires only ‘a short and plain statement of the 8 claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief,’ in order to ‘give the defendant fair notice of 9 what the . . . claim is and the grounds upon which it rests.’” Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 10 U.S. 544, 555 (2007) (alteration in original) (quoting Conley v. Gibson, 355 U.S. 41, 47 (1957)).
 11 “Failure to state a claim under § 1915A incorporates the familiar standard applied in the context 12 of failure to state a claim under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6).” Wilhelm v. Rotman, 13 680 F.3d 1113, 1121 (9th Cir. 2012) (citations omitted). In order to survive dismissal for failure 14 to state a claim, a complaint must contain more than “a formulaic recitation of the elements of a 15 cause of action;” it must contain factual allegations sufficient “to raise a right to relief above the 16 speculative level.” Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555 (citations omitted). “[T]he pleading must contain 17 something more . . . than . . . a statement of facts that merely creates a suspicion [of] a legally 18 cognizable right of action.” Id. (alteration in original) (quoting 5 Charles Alan Wright & Arthur 19 R. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure § 1216 (3d ed. 2004)).

20 “[A] complaint must contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to ‘state a claim to 21 relief that is plausible on its face.’” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (quoting 22 Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570). “A claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual 23 content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the 24 misconduct alleged.” Id. (citing Twombly, 550 U.S. at 556). In reviewing a complaint under this 25 standard, the court must accept as true the allegations of the complaint in question, Hosp. Bldg.
 26 Co. v. Trs. of the Rex Hosp., 425 U.S. 738, 740 (1976) (citation omitted), as well as construe the 27 pleading in the light most favorable to the plaintiff and resolve all doubts in the plaintiff’s favor, 28 Jenkins v. McKeithen, 395 U.S. 411, 421 (1969) (citations omitted).

1 II. Amended Complaint

2 The amended complaint, like the original, revolves around plaintiff's allegation that 3 defendants are attempting to enforce an "underground regulation" by requiring plaintiff to 4 transfer to a Non-Designated Programming Facility (NDPF); it claims various constitutional and 5 state law violations that have allegedly been caused by the attempted enforcement. ECF No. 15.

6 In screening the original complaint, the court advised that 7 the complaint is perilously close to constituting a "shotgun" or 8 "kitchen sink" complaint and violating Federal Rule of Civil 9 Procedure 8(a)(2)'s requirement that a complaint contain a "short and 10 plain statement . . . showing that the pleader is entitled to relief." 11 Despite the complaint being forty-seven pages in length, the causes 12 of action and their supporting facts are poorly defined, and as 13 discussed below, fail to state any cognizable claims. "The plaintiff 14 who files a kitchen-sink complaint shifts onto the defendant and the 15 court the burden of identifying the plaintiff's genuine claims and 16 determining which of those claims might have legal support. . . . It 17 is the plaintiff's] burden, under both Rule 8 and Rule 11, to 18 reasonably investigate their claims, to research the relevant law, to 19 plead only viable claims, and to plead those claims concisely and 20 clearly, so that a defendant can readily respond to them and a court 21 can readily resolve them." Gurman v. Metro Hous. & 22 Redevelopment Auth., 842 F. Supp. 2d 1151, 1153 (D. Minn. 2011).

23 ECF No. 12 at 3 n.1. The court nonetheless proceeded to screen the complaint comprehensively, 24 identifying the deficiencies of the claims as pleaded and specifying how they might be remedied, 25 where possible.¹ However, rather than amending the complaint to comply with Rule 8, plaintiff 26 has instead chosen to reproduce nearly the entire original complaint and add additional content 27 that has extended the complaint by eleven pages. Compare ECF No. 1 with ECF No. 15.

28 Despite increasing the length of the complaint, plaintiff has failed to remedy any of the 29 deficiencies identified in the screening order, including such basic failures as not pleading 30 compliance with the Government Claims Act. See ECF No. 12 at 12 (addressing pleading 31 requirement for state law claims). Instead, the extended length of the amended complaint is due 32 in significant part to the inclusion of additional information regarding the state court's finding 33 that the policy at issue is an "underground regulation" in violation of the state's Administrative 34 Code.

26
27
28 ¹ The undersigned found that some claims, such as the claim that plaintiff's disciplinaries 29 violated his right to be free from double jeopardy, could not be cured by amendment.

1 Procedures Act. ECF No. 15 at 2-3, 19-21. The additional pages are also attributable to the 2 addition of repetitive allegations regarding plaintiff's disciplinary punishment; former secretary 3 Kathleen Allison as a defendant; a claim under California Penal Code § 147; and allegations to 4 bolster plaintiff's due process claim. Id. at 4-17, 22-23, 41, 45-46.

5 As an initial matter, there is no private right of action under California Penal Code § 147.
6 See Johnson v. United States, 734 F. App'x 436, 440 (9th Cir. 2018). Moreover, whether the 7 NDPF policy violated California's Administrative Procedures Act is entirely immaterial to the 8 question whether it violated plaintiff's constitutional rights.² Plaintiff also misstates the state 9 court's findings regarding the dangerousness of NDPFs. The court did not find, as plaintiff 10 asserts, that NDPFs were "placing inmates lives in imminent danger." ECF No. 15 at 2. Instead, 11 the state court found that evidence "indicates that some violence between GP and SNY 12 populations has occurred since the NDPF Policy was implemented," but that "the extent to which 13 such violence exceeds the incidence of violence under the prior housing system is unclear." ECF 14 No. 15-1 at 10, 15. The state court's ruling therefore does not compel, as plaintiff implies, a 15 finding that transferring plaintiff to an NDPF, by itself, violates his Eighth Amendment rights.

16 Plaintiff's attempt to bolster his due process claim also fails to remedy the previously 17 identified deficiencies. As in the original complaint, plaintiff once again identifies three rules 18 violation reports (RVRs) that he received in relation to attempts to house him on an NDPF: a 19 November 25, 2020 RVR for refusing to transfer; a February 23, 2021 RVR for refusing to 20 transfer; and a March 23, 2021 RVR for behavior which could lead to violence. ECF No. 15 at 21 29, 36, 41. The amended complaint reiterates the allegations of the original and further alleges 22 that defendant O'Connor violated state law and the Department Operations Manual because "he 23 could not review [the] matter because he had been involved in [the] matter that was already on 24 appeal." Id. at 41. It also adds a conclusory allegation that plaintiff was not provided any of the 25 ////

27

² Plaintiff alleges that the NDPF policy violated the Administrative Procedures Act because it 28 was enacted without following the rulemaking procedures required by the Act. ECF No. 15 at 21-22.

1 protections outlined in Wolff v. McDonnell, 418 U.S. 539 (1974), and that there was no evidence 2 to support a finding of guilt. Id. at 45-46.

3 With respect to prison disciplinary proceedings that include the loss of good-time credits, 4 an inmate must receive (1) twenty-four-hour advanced written notice of the charges against him, 5 Wolff, 418 U.S. at 563-64; (2) “a written statement by the factfinders as to the evidence relied on 6 and reasons for the disciplinary action,” id. at 564 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted); 7 (3) an opportunity to call witnesses and present documentary evidence where doing so “will not 8 be unduly hazardous to institutional safety or correctional goals,” id. at 566; (4) assistance at the 9 hearing if he is illiterate or if the matter is complex, id. at 570; and (5) a sufficiently impartial fact 10 finder, id. at 570-71. A finding of guilt must also be “supported by some evidence in the record.”
11 Superintendent v. Hill, 472 U.S. 445, 454 (1985).

12 Even assuming that O’Connor violated state law and departmental policy, plaintiff’s due 13 process rights were not violated unless he was deprived one of the protections outlined in Wolff.
14 To the extent plaintiff appears to allege that O’Connor was not impartial, he still fails to 15 demonstrate a violation of his due process rights because there are no allegations that O’Connor 16 was not impartial while acting as a fact finder.³

17 Plaintiff also attempts to bolster his claim by making a formulaic recitation of the due 18 process protections outlined in Wolff and a conclusory assertion that he did not receive them.
19 ECF No. 15 at 46. This attempt fails to correct the deficiencies in the original complaint because 20 plaintiff offers no details regarding the alleged due process violations. He does not identify in 21 which, if any, of the disciplinary proceedings he was deprived of advanced written notice, and the 22 exhibits he provides all indicate that such notice was provided. ECF No. 15-1 at 38, 71, 91. The 23 exhibits to the complaint also demonstrate that plaintiff was provided with a written statement 24 regarding the evidence relied on and reasons for the disciplinaries (id. at 42, 74-76, 94-96), and 25 plaintiff does not identify any witnesses or evidence that he was prevented from presenting.

26
27 ³ Plaintiff appears to allege that it was inappropriate for O’Connor to interview him regarding 28 statements he made during a disciplinary hearing during which O’Connor was the hearing officer.
ECF No. 15 at 40-41.

1 There are also no allegations demonstrating that plaintiff is illiterate, that the matters were overly 2 complex, or that the fact finders were not impartial. Additionally, as the court found in screening 3 the original complaint, plaintiff has no due process claim related to his February 23, 2021 RVR 4 because he was found not guilty and did not lose any good-time credits as a result. ECF No. 12 at 5 10; see also Frank v. Schultz, 808 F.3d 762, 764 (9th Cir. 2015) (citations omitted) (no 6 compensable due process violation where procedural error is later corrected through 7 administrative process and prisoner ultimately did not lose good-time credits).

8 Plaintiff has also failed to plausibly allege a complete absence of evidence on which to 9 find him guilty of the offenses with which he was charged. As the court previously found, 10 “[r]ather than alleging a complete lack of evidence, the complaint reflects plaintiff’s disagreement 11 with the fact-finder’s interpretation of his conduct. Plaintiff’s admitted statements and refusal to 12 accept transfer constitute ‘some evidence’ within the meaning of Hill.¹” ECF No. 12 at 10.

13 Finally, plaintiff’s new allegations against defendant Allison—former Secretary of the 14 California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation—are substantively identical to those 15 made against defendant Hill—Warden of Folsom State Prison—and fail for the same reasons the 16 allegations against Hill failed to state a claim in the original complaint. See ECF No. 12 at 6-7 17 (explaining failure to state a claim against Hill). Moreover, because the remainder of the 18 amended complaint is identical to the original complaint, it fails to state a claim for the same 19 reasons set forth in the October 12, 2022 screening order (ECF No. 12), which is incorporated 20 herein by reference.

21 III. No Leave to Amend

22 Leave to amend should be granted if it appears possible that the defects in the complaint 23 could be corrected, especially if a plaintiff is pro se. Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 1130-31 24 (9th Cir. 2000) (en banc). However, if, after careful consideration, it is clear that a complaint 25 cannot be cured by amendment, the court may dismiss without leave to amend. Cato v. United 26 States, 70 F.3d 1103, 1105-06 (9th Cir. 1995).

27 The undersigned finds that, as set forth above, the complaint fails to state a claim upon 28 which relief may be granted. Plaintiff, who is represented by counsel, has already been given an 1 opportunity to amend the complaint and advised what kind of information he needed to provide.

2 Given the lack of additional facts provided by plaintiff and the failure to cure any deficiencies or 3 conform the complaint to comply with Rule 8, it does not appear that further amendment would 4 result in a cognizable claim. As a result, leave to amend would be futile and the complaint should 5 be dismissed without leave to amend.

6 Accordingly, IT IS HEREBY RECOMMENDED that for the reasons set forth above and 7 in the October 12, 2022 Screening Order (ECF No. 12), the first amended complaint be dismissed 8 without leave to amend for failure to state a claim.

9 These findings and recommendations are submitted to the United States District Judge 10 assigned to the case, pursuant to the provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1). Within twenty-one days 11 after being served with these findings and recommendations, plaintiff may file written objections 12 with the court. Such a document should be captioned “Objections to Magistrate Judges Findings 13 and Recommendations.” Plaintiff is advised that failure to file objections within the specified 14 time may waive the right to appeal the District Court’s order. Martinez v. Ylst, 951 F.2d 1153 15 (9th Cir. 1991).
